THE SPATIAL PATTERN

The Spatial Pattern explores the socioeconomic inequalities of London's open green spaces based on quality and accessibility. Combining hanging photographs and ambisonic sound showering the audience from multiple ceiling speakers, this project looks to create an immersive exhibition that brings awareness to the growing inaccessibility of diverse natural spaces for residents of urban environments. With a focus on those without resources to gain easy access. This project is the reality for many residents of London and so the project looks to offer an insight into the differences on city and rural life.
