

The monotonous work and dullness of everyday life always leave you feeling restless, especially on those bleary-eyed mornings when you drag yourself to work.

At times like this...

You enjoy quietly sippin tea.

Then you watch yourself sink into the tea water.

Luckily,
you grabbed onto
the tail of a big fish

and leaped out of the water
together.

The fish carrying you crosses the massive archway, transforms into a dragon.

Luckily, the giant saved you, but you accidentally fell off the bridge made of the giant's palm.

You fell into the fox's hat.

Then,
you transformed
into a bird.

You soared through the overcast
clouds towards the clear skies.

You have finally reached
the pinnacle of the clouds.

You see yourself,
still in that teacup.

The rain has stopped.

Tea is finished.

Serenity ends.

Alright, alright, alright!
Time to wake up from la-la land, huh?
I've got a bunch of reports to hand in this afternoon, so I better stop daydreaming and get my act together!